

Terms of Service for Recorder for Wireless Mics

Effective date: 2026-07-20

1. Introduction

These Terms of Service govern access to and use of Recorder for Wireless Mics. They form an agreement between each user and Jiri Otoupal, an individual based in Czechia with a postal address at Vikingská 1248/2, Hodolany, 779 00 Olomouc. They take effect on 2026-07-20.

By using an acceptance method described below, each user agrees to these Terms. If a user does not agree, the user must not access or use the service. Mandatory rights that cannot lawfully be waived remain unaffected.

2. Eligibility and acceptance

The service is offered to consumers through mobile or desktop applications. Users must be at least 16 years old and legally able to enter this agreement. Accounts may not be used to bind an organization without its authority.

Users accept these Terms through affirmative acceptance at purchase. Acceptance is effective only where the Terms are made available before the user takes an action that forms a valid agreement. The service may record the accepted version, time, account, and acceptance event as evidence of that agreement.

3. Service

Recorder for Wireless Mics provides: Audio Recording. Features, technical requirements, usage limits, and any paid plan included in an order or product page form part of this agreement.

Users receive a limited, revocable, non-exclusive, non-transferable right to access and use the service for its intended purpose during the applicable service period, subject to these Terms and mandatory law.

4. Acceptable use

Users must not use the service for or in connection with: illegal activity; security abuse, malware, or unauthorized testing; intellectual-property infringement; fraud or deceptive conduct; unauthorized scraping or automated access; spam or unsolicited messaging; impersonation; harassment, threats, or dangerous content; or interference with the service or other users. Users must not help others evade these restrictions.

Reasonable security testing requires prior written authorization. Restrictions on reverse engineering apply only to the extent permitted by law and do not limit non-waivable interoperability or statutory rights.

5. Intellectual property

The operator and its licensors retain rights in the service, software, branding, designs, documentation, and operator-created content. These Terms grant no ownership right or implied license beyond the limited service-use right stated above.

Feedback is optional and creates no obligation to implement it.

6. Payments, refunds, and taxes

Service access uses these models: free access and recurring subscriptions. Prices are displayed in the currency displayed at checkout before purchase. Users authorize disclosed charges and must provide a valid payment method. Tax treatment: taxes are calculated, included, or added as disclosed before purchase and required by applicable law.

Refund policy: Apple Store Refunds. Paid digital content or service access may begin immediately after purchase. This policy does not exclude refunds, conformity remedies, cooling-off rights, charge corrections, or other remedies required by applicable law.

7. Subscriptions

Subscriptions are billed on the interval displayed before purchase and renew on that interval until canceled. Price, renewal frequency, minimum commitment, and material restrictions are those shown before acceptance; additional disclosure applies only where law requires it. No free or discounted trial applies unless separately displayed at purchase.

Renewal notice practice: renewal reminders are provided when required by applicable law. Users can stop renewal through: the method disclosed before purchase or made available through the service. Cancellation takes effect as disclosed at cancellation and does not remove statutory refund or termination rights. Price or material subscription changes require notice and any termination right required by law.

8. Suspension and termination

Users may end service or close an account as follows: Uninstalling app. Before closure, users may retrieve their content through the retrieval or export method made available by the service.

The operator may suspend or terminate access for: material breach, nonpayment, illegal or abusive use, credible security or legal risk, repeated violations, or discontinuation of the service. Where practicable and legally required, the operator will give notice, reasons, and an opportunity to cure or appeal. Terms intended by their nature to survive termination, including accrued payment, ownership, lawful license, dispute, and liability provisions, continue to apply.

9. Changes to service and Terms

Service changes are handled as follows: Email. Changes apply prospectively unless applicable law and a valid agreement permit otherwise. If a paid digital service is materially and negatively changed, users receive only the notice, continued-access option, or termination remedy required by law or an express purchase commitment.

Material changes are announced by email at least 30 days before they take effect where practicable. Urgent legal or security changes may take effect sooner when permitted. Continued use after an effective date constitutes acceptance only where that method forms a valid agreement; otherwise fresh consent will be requested when required. No separate force-majeure clause applies.

10. Warranties and mandatory rights

The operator will provide the service with the care and conformity required by applicable law. Except for express commitments and non-excludable rights, the service is provided on an “as available” basis and no guarantee is made that it will be uninterrupted, error-free, or suitable for every purpose.

No disclaimer in these Terms excludes a consumer guarantee, statutory warranty, digital-content conformity duty, or remedy that cannot lawfully be excluded or limited.

11. Limitation of liability

To the maximum extent permitted by law, the operator is not liable for indirect or consequential loss, including where it was foreseeable or the operator was advised of its possibility. The operator's aggregate liability relating to the affected service is limited to zero, except for liability that applicable law does not permit the operator to exclude.

These exclusions and limits apply to the maximum extent permitted by law. They do not exclude or limit any liability or remedy only to the extent applicable law prohibits doing so.

12. Governing law and disputes

These Terms are governed by applicable law, without forcing consumers to lose mandatory protection available in their country of residence. Subject to mandatory consumer venue rights and any valid arbitration agreement below, disputes may be brought in courts or tribunals having jurisdiction under applicable law.

Before formal proceedings, each party should send a written description of the dispute and allow a reasonable period for good-faith resolution. This does not prevent urgent relief, a complaint to a regulator, or use of a consumer dispute body where available.

13. EU consumer rights

Consumers in the EU or EEA keep mandatory pre-contract information, conformity, price-reduction, termination, reimbursement, and national consumer-law rights. A choice-of-law or venue clause does not deprive a consumer of mandatory protection or access to a court available under applicable law.

Where a 14-day withdrawal right applies, a consumer may exercise it by sending an unambiguous notice to 9hly2ztp1@mozmail.com before the period expires. Instructions, a model form, or confirmation are supplied only when and as applicable law requires. Digital content delivered immediately loses that right only when all legal conditions are met, including any required prior express consent, acknowledgment, and confirmation; agreement to these Terms alone is not treated as separate consent where separate consent is required.

14. Contact

Questions, complaints, cancellation notices, and legal notices may be sent to Jiri Otoupal by email at 9hly2ztp1@mozmail.com and by mail to Vikingská 1248/2, Hodolany, 779 00 Olomouc.